I. PURPOSE OF THE GOVERNANCE POLICY

The present Governance Policy establishes the corporate governance framework for the Canada Council for the Arts (“Canada Council”). The objectives of this policy are to:

- (a) define the corporation’s purpose, mandate and structure;
- (b) define Board and Management roles and responsibilities;
- (c) provide a consistent, coherent and comprehensive accountability framework that spans the entire organizational structure;
- (d) facilitate strategic decision-making for the Board and Management; and
- (e) heighten Board, staff and external stakeholder confidence in the stewardship of the Board, the professionalism of Management and the integrity of the organization’s activities and processes.

This revised and restated Governance Policy was approved by the Board on October 19, 2023.

II. OVERVIEW OF THE CANADA COUNCIL

2.1 Creation and Independence

The Canada Council is a federal Crown corporation created by an Act of Parliament in 1957 to “foster and promote the study and enjoyment of, and the production of works in, the arts” for the benefit of Canadians. The Canada Council is established as a corporation and as a registered charity by sections 3 and 19 of the Canada Council for the Arts Act (the “CCA Act”).

The Canada Council has authority to establish its priorities, policies and funding programs and make grant decisions within the confines of the CCA Act. As a Crown corporation that dispenses public funds, the Canada Council has an equally high degree of responsibility to maintain the public trust and account fully and openly for its operations and decisions. In accordance with Treasury Board of Canada Secretariat guidelines, the Canada Council is expected to be receptive to the government’s general objectives (e.g., official languages, employment equity, etc.). When asked to voluntarily comply with the government’s public policy objectives, it is the obligation of the Board, based on the recommendations from Management, to weigh any competing objectives and strike a judicious balance, which best serves the Canada Council in fulfilling its mandate.

2.2 Mandate

The Canada Council mandate, as defined in subsection 8(1) of the CCA Act, is to “foster and promote the study and enjoyment of, and production of works in, the arts.” In addition, the Canada Council may engage in other activities, including:

- a) assisting and cooperating with other organizations with similar objects;
- b) providing grants, scholarships or loans for study or research of the arts in Canada or elsewhere;
- c) Giving awards to persons in Canada for outstanding accomplishments in the arts;
- d) arranging and sponsor exhibitions, performances and publications of works in the arts; and
- e) exchanging knowledge or information with respect to the arts with other countries, organizations or persons.

- f) Arrange representation and interpretation of Canadian arts in other countries.¹

To fulfil its mandate, the Canada Council offers a broad range of grants, services and prizes to professional Canadian artists and arts organizations. The Council raises public awareness and appreciation of the arts through its communications, research and arts promotion activities. Its prizes and fellowships celebrate creativity by recognizing exceptional Canadians in the arts. The Canada Council Art Bank rents contemporary Canadian art to the public and private sectors. The Canada Council is responsible for the Canadian Commission of the United Nations Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization (“CCUNESCO”), as well as the Public Lending Right (“PLR”) Program, which compensates authors for public use of their works.

2.3 Core Organizational Values

The Canada Council contributes to the vibrancy and sustainability of an independent arts and literary scene that is creative, diverse, accessible and inclusive. Its work is in line with broader values of democracy and public service. The Canada Council participates fully in the significant process towards decolonization, redress and cultural self-determination of Indigenous Peoples and nations.

To fulfil its mandate, the Canada Council supports, directly and in a variety of ways, artists, arts groups and organizations in their research, training, creation, production, programming and engagement with audiences in their communities, across the country and around the world.

The Canada Council is committed to acting in all circumstances in a manner that honours and embodies these value statements, which it considers fundamental to the fulfilment of its mandate:

- Our collective responsibility is based on humility, openness, listening and empathy that enable us to understand, support and participate in the positive change that drives the development of organizations, communities and society.
- Mutual trust, respect and reciprocity foster shared leadership and are necessary for positive transformation.
- Curiosity and continuous learning are essential to our work. It is stimulated by the constant sharing of facts, experiences, expertise and ideas that shed light on the most complex issues and the inevitable grey areas.
- Our passion and care for our work and our shared mandate are sources of success, sense of accomplishment and belonging.

2.4 Strategic Planning

The Strategic Plan sets out the Canada Council’s strategic direction and vision for a specified period and is determined through a comprehensive strategic planning process, involving an in-depth analysis of the organization, its environment and its fundamental values.

The Canada Council establishes priorities, objectives and strategies as well as the mechanisms for ensuring implementation, monitoring performance and evaluating outcomes for a specific planning period. Consultations with the Council’s key stakeholders may be included. The Council’s public policy role, as well as objectives provided by its statutory mandate, are addressed through the strategic planning process. The Council's Strategic Plan is available on the website.

2.5 Statutory and Regulatory Framework

The principles of the Canada Council are guided by parliamentary statutes. The CCA Act sets out the Canada Council's purpose, powers and duties. The Financial Administration Act (the "FAA"), Part X, sets out the control and accountability regime for Crown corporations; however, the Canada Council is exempt from most of the FAA.²

Every year the Canada Council must render account to Parliament through the Minister of Canadian Heritage for all proceedings under the CCA Act. Like other Crown corporations, the Canada Council is subject to other laws, such as the Federal Accountability Act, the Privacy Act (the "PA"), the Access to Information Act (the "AIA"), the Official Languages Act (the "OLA"), the Employment Equity Act and the Canadian Human Rights Act, as well as Treasury Board regulations. From time to time, the Canada Council is called to appear before parliamentary committees, particularly the House of Commons Standing Committee on Canadian Heritage. Compliance with the Conflict of Interest Act is also a condition of appointment as a public office holder. In addition, the Public Servants Disclosure Protection Act (the "PSDPA"), which is meant to provide protection to whistleblowers, extends to the Canada Council.

In addition to the specific statutes that impact the Canada Council, either individually or as a Crown corporation, the Canada Council is required to obey all laws of general application that are relevant to it. As a charitable organization, the Canada Council has specific obligations pursuant to the Income Tax Act. There are numerous other statutes of General application that must be complied with by the Canada Council, such as the Canadian Multiculturalism Act ("CMA"), the Emergency Preparedness Act, the Library and Archives Act and the Accessible Canada Act.

APPENDIX A: BOARD DIVERSITY STATEMENT OF PRINCIPLES

(October 2023)

Role and Mandate

The Canada Council for the Arts is Canada’s public arts funder, with a mandate “to foster and promote the study and enjoyment of, and the production of works in, the arts.”

The Canada Council’s grants, services, initiatives, prizes and payments support Canadian artists, authors and arts groups and organizations. This support allows them to pursue artistic expression, create works of art and promote and disseminate the arts and literature. Through its arts funding, communications, research and promotion activities, the Canada Council fosters ever-growing engagement of Canadians and international audiences in the arts.

In addition to grants and prizes, the Canada Council’s Public Lending Right (PLR) program makes annual payments to creators whose works are held in Canadian public libraries. The Canada Council’s Art Bank purchases Canadian artworks, operates art rental programs and helps further public engagement through exhibition and outreach activities. The Canada Council is also responsible for the CCUNESCO, which promotes the values and programs of UNESCO to contribute to a future of peace, reconciliation, equity and sustainable development.

The Canada Council’s Board plays a key role in upholding the organization’s mandate, helping to ensure that the arts in Canada remain vibrant, diverse and reflective of all Canadians. The Canada Council recognizes and embraces the importance of a Board that is representative of Canada’s diverse population, which benefits and enhances the quality of the Board’s work and the organization’s overall performance.

Principles

The Canada Council has a history of embedding values of equity within its operations. The practice of linguistic duality, gender equality, the investment in regional artistic institutions, the creation of the first Indigenous led Arts Program and the continued work of the Equity, Access and Outreach team and its pioneering work in Deaf and disability arts, as well as equitable practices within policy development, grant programs and processes, have all contributed to a diverse and vital arts ecology.

These principles, policies and processes are detailed in the Canada Council’s Equity Policy, an overarching document which governs and supports the Council’s application of equity principles and practices in all its activities, including those pertaining to granting. This work reflects a commitment to institutional values and adherence to the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms, the Canadian Human Rights Act, the Employment Equity Act, the Canadian Multiculturalism Act, the Indian Act and the Official Languages Act.

The nature of the Canada Council and the challenges it faces determine and inform the overall mix of skills, expertise and knowledge required by the Board as a whole. In order to fulfil the Board’s roles and responsibilities, a variety of perspectives is needed to ensure knowledgeable discussions and informed decision-making.

As such, the Canada Council aspires to a balanced mix of representation reflecting Canada’s diversity, considering, but not limited to, the following factors:

- gender diversity;
- language (representation of the two official languages, including official language minority communities);
- region (representation from all parts of Canada);
- diversity of age (representation of different “generations”);
- Indigenous people (Indigenous peoples from across Canada, including First Nations, Inuit and Métis communities);
- culturally diverse (representation of people in Canada of African, Asian, Latin American, Middle Eastern and of mixed racial heritage, including at least one of these groups);
- Deaf people (people in Canada who are deaf or experience differing degrees or types of hearing loss. This includes those who identify as culturally Deaf and share distinct sign languages, traditions, values, histories, aesthetics and norms);
- people with disabilities (people in Canada with actual or perceived impairments who experience disadvantage and therefore a disability, as a direct result of that impairment).

In addition, the Canada Council looks for diverse experience and knowledge, including:

- artistic practice or experience (artists and arts professionals from across all artistic disciplines); and
- expertise and specialization in finance, accounting, governance, leadership in the arts and other sectors (e.g., public engagement, legal, marketing, etc.).

Process and Approach

As the Canada Council is a federal Crown corporation, its Board appointments process is governed by government policies and processes, as determined by the Privy Council Office. Appointments to the Council’s Board are made by the Governor in Council, through recommendations by the Minister of Canadian Heritage.⁴ The Council does not have decision-making power in making appointments but ensures that the needs of the Board in terms of representation are clearly and consistently communicated to Canadian Heritage for each vacancy, to facilitate the recommendation process.

- ❖ Leading up to each Board vacancy, the Governance and Nominating Committee reviews the Board’s needs and requirements in terms of representation, using the factors indicated above to guide their assessment. This is done through an assessment of the current gaps and risks and the specific needs going forward.
- ❖ The Board Chair advises the Department of Canadian Heritage, through the Corporate Secretary, of the needs for representation on the Board and identifies and discusses specific risks associated with upcoming vacancies on the Board.
- ❖ As part of the process, consultations with stakeholders about potential candidates who fulfil these requirements are held to promote transparency in the process and seek out individuals who would bring different perspectives to the Board. Stakeholders are encouraged to communicate directly with the Minister’s Office regarding their interest in service on the Canada Council’s Board and to regularly visit the Governor in Council appointments website.
