Circus Arts

For the Canada Council, circus arts are a form of artistic expression that integrates the mastery of one or more circus techniques recognized and taught by professional circus art schools such as the National Circus School (such as aerial acrobatics, balancing, clowning art, equestrian art, floor acrobatics and juggling).

The Canada Council encourages and supports a range of artistic genres and approaches in contemporary circus art, including social circus led by qualified professional artists.

The practice, discourse and works funded by the Canada Council are those that lead to the creative evolution of this art form and that use circus techniques, often combined with other art forms, in original and innovative artistic concepts.

New/Early Career Artist

Circus Arts / Individual

The New/Early Career Artist profile is for artists who are entering or who are in the early stages of their professional career in one or more fields of practice recognized by the Canada Council. This profile also welcomes artists who are new to Canada, and may have received training or begun a career in their country of origin.

To be eligible as a New/Early Career Artist, you must:

- be at least 18 years old
- be either a Canadian citizen or a permanent resident of Canada
- not have an approved applicant profile with the Canada Council
- not have previously received a grant from the Canada Council
- have some training, experience or accomplishment in one or more of the following fields of practice: Circus Arts, Dance, Deaf and Disability Arts, Digital Arts, Inter-Arts, Literature, Media Arts, Music and Sound, Theatre or Visual Arts. Past training could include mentorship, self-study, workshops, etc. Training in an academic institution is not mandatory. Training, experience or accomplishments that took place outside of Canada are recognized.
- be committed to the ongoing development of your skills and artistic practice.

Note: you must demonstrate, in your CV, that you meet the eligibility criteria stated above.

This profile is open to young practicing artists. However, if you are currently enrolled in artistic studies or training, you must demonstrate that you have previous artistic experience and are engaged in an independent artistic practice. The Canada Council does not fund activities that are carried out to satisfy course requirements. Funded activities must be independent from your program of study.

You can have only 1 New/Early Career Artist profile. It is not necessary to select more than 1 field of practice.

If you are later validated for another profile, you will no longer be able to use your New/Early Career Artist profile to apply for grants.

The New/Early Career Artist profile is a pilot project that will be in place for a 2-year trial period until March 31, 2021.

Dance

The Canada Council supports professional dance artists and organizations in many forms – whether anchored in tradition or based on research and exploration – and expressions – on stage, site-specific, in non-traditional venues, or in a media or digital format.

Activities that fall within dance competitions, a college or university program or research project or that are exclusively educational or academic do not qualify for Council support.

Support for festivals and presenting activities is in complementarity with support offered by the Department of Canadian Heritage.

Deaf and Disability Arts

For the Canada Council, Deaf and disability arts are diverse artistic practices in which being Deaf, having a disability or living with mental illness are central to the exploration of narrative, form and/or aesthetics. This work carries a high degree of innovation and breaks traditional or dominant artistic conventions to bring distinct perspectives and ways of being into the arts ecology, shifting perceptions and understandings of human diversity.

The Canada Council recognizes that the advancement of Deaf and disability arts can be disciplinary or interdisciplinary in approach and includes practices such as De'VIA, Mad arts and Mixed Ability or Integrated arts.

Artists must self-identify as Deaf, having a disability or living with mental illness and must have a history of public presentation. Organizations must be dedicated to advancing Deaf and disability arts as a core mandate and the majority of its leadership team must be Deaf and disability-identified artists and/or arts professionals.

The New/Early Career Artist profile is for artists who are entering or who are in the early stages of their professional career in one or more fields of practice recognized by the Canada Council. This profile also welcomes artists who are new to Canada, and may have received training or begun a career in their country of origin.

To be eligible as a New/Early Career Artist, you must:

- be at least 18 years old
- be either a Canadian citizen or a permanent resident of Canada
- not have an approved applicant profile with the Canada Council
- not have previously received a grant from the Canada Council
- have some training, experience or accomplishment in one or more of the following fields of practice: Circus Arts, Dance, Deaf and Disability Arts, Digital Arts, Inter-Arts, Literature, Media Arts, Music and Sound, Theatre or Visual Arts. Past training could include mentorship, self-study, workshops, etc. Training in an academic institution is not mandatory. Training, experience or accomplishments that took place outside of Canada are recognized.
- be committed to the ongoing development of your skills and artistic practice.

Note: you must demonstrate, in your CV, that you meet the eligibility criteria stated above.

This profile is open to young practicing artists. However, if you are currently enrolled in artistic studies or training, you must demonstrate that you have previous artistic experience and are engaged in an independent artistic practice. The Canada Council does not fund activities that are carried out to satisfy course requirements. Funded activities must be independent from your program of study.

You can have only 1 New/Early Career Artist profile. It is not necessary to select more than 1 field of practice.

If you are later validated for another profile, you will no longer be able to use your New/Early Career Artist profile to apply for grants.

The New/Early Career Artist profile is a pilot project that will be in place for a 2-year trial period until March 31, 2021.

Indigenous Arts

The Canada Council for the Arts is committed to reaffirming and revitalizing its relationship with First Nations, Inuit and Métis peoples in Canada. The Canada Council believes that an approach that respects First Nations, Inuit and Métis artistic expression, cultural protocols, Indigenous rights and Indigenous worldviews will stimulate First Nations, Inuit and Métis artists, artistic practices, and communities.

Creating, Knowing and Sharing acknowledges the cultural sovereignty of Indigenous peoples and respects the concepts of First Nations, Inuit and Métis self-determination.

Creating

Creating provides support for research, production, and creation of new works of art. The Canada Council acknowledges the depth and breadth of First Nations, Inuit and Métis artistic and creative production in customary as well as contemporary milieus.

Knowing

Knowing provides support for the retention, maintenance, innovation and transmittal of cultural knowledge and creative practice. This includes contemporary and historical critical discourse, arts/cultural training and initiatives that seek to pass cultural knowledge to younger generations through artistic practice, and the renewal and maintenance of customary art practices.

Sharing

Sharing provides support for the dissemination, exhibition, presentation and distribution of works of art by First Nations, Inuit and Métis peoples, which enrich and engage communities in Canada and abroad.

First Nations, Inuit or Métis Professional Artist

Indigenous Arts / Individual

The Canada Council supports art made by First Nations, Inuit and Métis artists for creative and cultural purposes. It values distinctive voices that are free to determine their own artistic direction and supports excellence, innovation, experimentation and creativity in all established and emerging artistic practices.

To be eligible as a First Nations, Inuit and Métis professional artist, you must:

- be committed to the creation and dissemination of original contemporary or customary works of art, and to the ongoing development of your skills and practice
- have specialized training in your field, consistent with the standards of their practice. This can include mentorships, self-study, academic training or combinations of these types of training
- be recognized by other artists working in the same practice or by their community as an artist of achievement or potential
- commit to your own artistic vision, regardless of its commercial potential, and retain creative control of their work
- have maintained a professional artistic practice for a minimum of 2 years (but not necessarily in consecutive months)
- have presented, performed or exhibited at least 1 work publicly, and received compensation and/or recognition for this in a manner consistent with the standards of your practice, community or Indigenous protocols

Inter-Arts

For the Canada Council, inter-arts work involves the exploration or integration of multiple traditional and/or contemporary arts disciplines that are merged or mixed in such a way that no single artistic discipline dominates in the final outcome.

The Canada Council recognizes two genres of inter-arts work:

- Non-disciplinary: experimentation with new art forms that do not refer to existing arts disciplines
- Transdisciplinary: methods that cross the arts with other non-arts disciplines to explore a theme or issue

New/Early Career Artist

Inter-Arts / Individual

The New/Early Career Artist profile is for artists who are entering or who are in the early stages of their professional career in one or more fields of practice recognized by the Canada Council. This profile also welcomes artists who are new to Canada, and may have received training or begun a career in their country of origin.

To be eligible as a New/Early Career Artist, you must:

- be at least 18 years old
- be either a Canadian citizen or a permanent resident of Canada
- not have an approved applicant profile with the Canada Council
- not have previously received a grant from the Canada Council
- have some training, experience or accomplishment in one or more of the following fields of practice: Circus Arts, Dance, Deaf and Disability Arts, Digital Arts, Inter-Arts, Literature, Media Arts, Music and Sound, Theatre or Visual Arts. Past training could include mentorship, self-study, workshops, etc. Training in an academic institution is not mandatory. Training, experience or accomplishments that took place outside of Canada are recognized.
- be committed to the ongoing development of your skills and artistic practice.

Note: you must demonstrate, in your CV, that you meet the eligibility criteria stated above.

This profile is open to young practicing artists. However, if you are currently enrolled in artistic studies or training, you must demonstrate that you have previous artistic experience and are engaged in an independent artistic practice. The Canada Council does not fund activities that are carried out to satisfy course requirements. Funded activities must be independent from your program of study.

You can have only 1 New/Early Career Artist profile. It is not necessary to select more than 1 field of practice.

If you are later validated for another profile, you will no longer be able to use your New/Early Career Artist profile to apply for grants.

The New/Early Career Artist profile is a pilot project that will be in place for a 2-year trial period until March 31, 2021.

Media Arts

For the Canada Council, media arts are understood as new media and moving images (film and video) practices. These practices are considered broadly; for example, moving image works may be single or multi-channel, expanded cinema, or installation based. New media art includes practices that involve digital art, social media art, interactive installation, immersive and interactive environment, web-based art, database art, bio art, and robotics. For any artwork to be considered a media artwork, the work must have a significant portion that is media arts.

The Canada Council funds works where the artist (in the case of moving images, the director) initiates and drives the project while maintaining complete creative and editorial control at all times. The Council does not support work intended for the creative industries of film, television and video games.

Artists may seek funding from other sources, provided that funding does not compromise the independence of the project.

New/Early Career Artist

Media Arts / Individual

The New/Early Career Artist profile is for artists who are entering or who are in the early stages of their professional career in one or more fields of practice recognized by the Canada Council. This profile also welcomes artists who are new to Canada, and may have received training or begun a career in their country of origin.

To be eligible as a New/Early Career Artist, you must:

- be at least 18 years old
- be either a Canadian citizen or a permanent resident of Canada
- not have an approved applicant profile with the Canada Council
- not have previously received a grant from the Canada Council
- have some training, experience or accomplishment in one or more of the following fields of practice: Circus Arts, Dance, Deaf and Disability Arts, Digital Arts, Inter-Arts, Literature, Media Arts, Music and Sound, Theatre or Visual Arts. Past training could include mentorship, self-study, workshops, etc. Training in an academic institution is not mandatory. Training, experience or accomplishments that took place outside of Canada are recognized.
- be committed to the ongoing development of your skills and artistic practice.

Note: you must demonstrate, in your CV, that you meet the eligibility criteria stated above.

This profile is open to young practicing artists. However, if you are currently enrolled in artistic studies or training, you must demonstrate that you have previous artistic experience and are engaged in an independent artistic practice. The Canada Council does not fund activities that are carried out to satisfy course requirements. Funded activities must be independent from your program of study.

You can have only 1 New/Early Career Artist profile. It is not necessary to select more than 1 field of practice.

If you are later validated for another profile, you will no longer be able to use your New/Early Career Artist profile to apply for grants.

The New/Early Career Artist profile is a pilot project that will be in place for a 2-year trial period until March 31, 2021.

Music and Sound

For the Canada Council, Music and Sound includes classical music forms from all world cultures, folk, jazz, new music, audio art and other innovative forms of sound expression that use digital technologies as an integral part of the finished work.

It values distinctive artistic voices that are free from commercial considerations; and supports excellence, innovation, experimentation and creativity in all established and emerging traditions of music.

In Music and Sound, the Canada Council defines a professional artist as someone who:

- has specialized training in the field, consistent with the standards of their practice.
- is recognized by other music artists working in the same tradition as an artist of superior achievement or potential.
- is committed to their own artistic vision, retains creative control and is committed to the creation and/or promotion of original work.
- has a history of public presentation, receives professional compensation for the public presentation of its work, and actively seeks to maximize the audience for their work, regardless of purely commercial considerations.

Support for festivals and presenting activities is in complementarity with support offered by the Department of Canadian Heritage.

Theatre

The Canada Council supports the creation, production and dissemination of professional theatre and recognizes a diverse array of theatrical forms and practices, including, but not limited to:

- original Canadian work
- classical and contemporary repertoire
- theatre for young audiences
- music theatre
- puppetry and object theatre
- physical theatre – including commedia, mime, clown, movement and dance theatre
- site-specific and environmental theatre
- live art, micro-performance and interactive theatre
- interdisciplinary work
- digital and multi-media performance
- community engaged arts

The Canada Council does not fund capital projects or significant capital expenses. It does not support basic training such as Bachelors of Fine Arts or Conservatory programs. It does not fund projects in the context of a training institution, including end of term projects

Support for festivals and presenting activities is in complementarity with support offered by the Department of Canadian Heritage.

New/Early Career Artist

Theatre / Individual

The New/Early Career Artist profile is for artists who are entering or who are in the early stages of their professional career in one or more fields of practice recognized by the Canada Council. This profile also welcomes artists who are new to Canada, and may have received training or begun a career in their country of origin.

To be eligible as a New/Early Career Artist, you must:

- be at least 18 years old
- be either a Canadian citizen or a permanent resident of Canada
- not have an approved applicant profile with the Canada Council
- not have previously received a grant from the Canada Council
- have some training, experience or accomplishment in one or more of the following fields of practice: Circus Arts, Dance, Deaf and Disability Arts, Digital Arts, Inter-Arts, Literature, Media Arts, Music and Sound, Theatre or Visual Arts. Past training could include mentorship, self-study, workshops, etc. Training in an academic institution is not mandatory. Training, experience or accomplishments that took place outside of Canada are recognized.
- be committed to the ongoing development of your skills and artistic practice.

Note: you must demonstrate, in your CV, that you meet the eligibility criteria stated above.

This profile is open to young practicing artists. However, if you are currently enrolled in artistic studies or training, you must demonstrate that you have previous artistic experience and are engaged in an independent artistic practice. The Canada Council does not fund activities that are carried out to satisfy course requirements. Funded activities must be independent from your program of study.

You can have only 1 New/Early Career Artist profile. It is not necessary to select more than 1 field of practice.

If you are later validated for another profile, you will no longer be able to use your New/Early Career Artist profile to apply for grants.

The New/Early Career Artist profile is a pilot project that will be in place for a 2-year trial period until March 31, 2021.

Visual Arts

For the Canada Council, the visual arts is composed of a wide field of practices including photography, fine craft, performance art, independent curating, critical writing and publishing in the visual arts and architecture. It embraces emergent forms and multidisciplinary practices that include, but are not limited to, artist's books, audio, video, film, and other innovative forms of visual arts expression that use digital technology as an integral part of the finished work.

In Visual Arts, The Canada Council defines a professional artist as someone who:

- has specialized training in the field, consistent with the standards of their practice
- is recognized by other artists working in the same tradition as an artist of superior achievement or potential
- is committed to their own artistic vision, retains creative control and is committed to the creation and/or promotion of original work
- has a history of public presentation in a professional context, receives professional compensation for the public presentation of their work, and actively seeks to maximize their audience, regardless of purely commercial considerations.

A professional context is one that is recognized by a professional curator, gallery owner, art dealer, publisher, collective of professional artists or jury of professionals in the field.

The Canada Council supports the advancement and public presentation of practices and ideas in the fields of contemporary visual arts, as well as the advancement of public conversation about Canadian contemporary architecture. It values distinctive artistic voices responding to and critically engaging with civic life and culture as well as those committed to pushing boundaries of artistic practices, art forms and genres.

The Canada Council does not fund capital projects or significant capital expenses. It does not support basic training or fund academic projects.
